HEADLINE: 'SEX' SUIT VS. GODIVA

BYLINE: Denise Buffa

BODY:

A former Godiva worker is suing the chocolate company, claiming his boss sexually harassed him.

Miguel Rodriguez-Cintron said Bruce Alaimo repeatedly harassed him, then fired him when he refused a date.

"It's textbook sexual harassment," said Rodriguez-Cintron's lawyer, Derek Smith.

Alaimo declined to comment.

A corporate spokeswoman, Erica Lapidus, said she could not comment, noting Godiva had not been served with court papers.

But, she said, "we take these [types of] allegations seriously."
